La gestion des actifs, c'est...

Que détenons-nous?

Où est-ce?

Quelle est sa valeur?

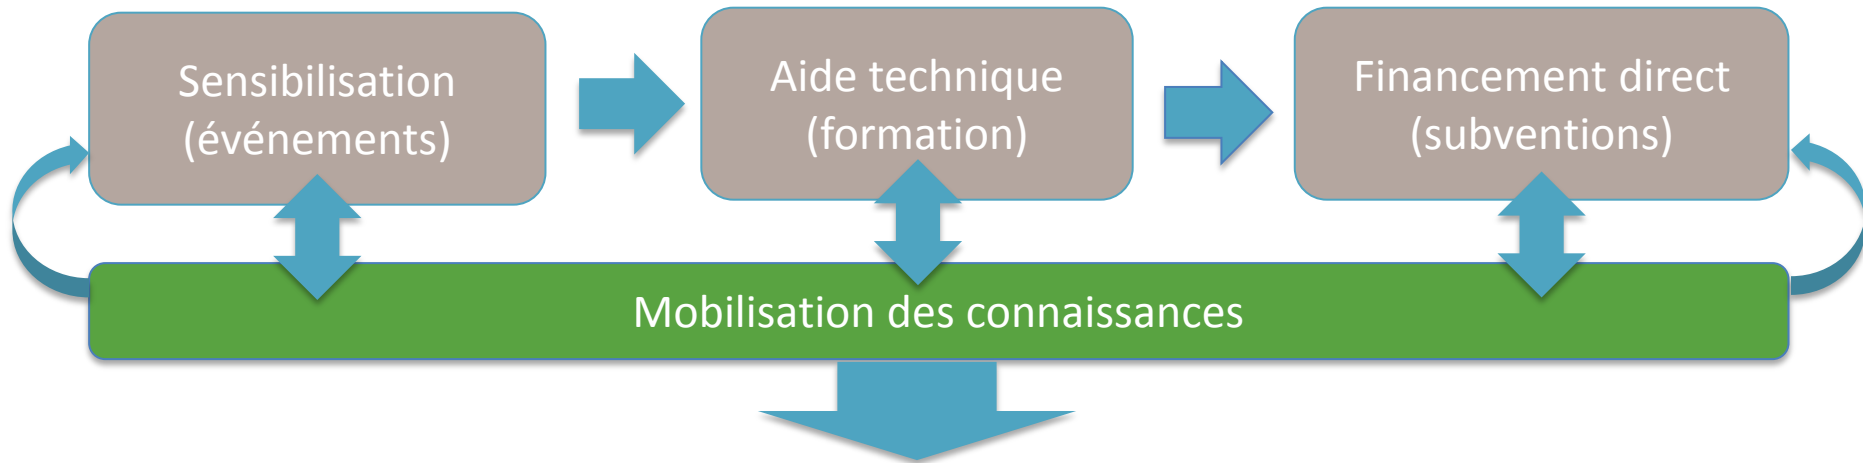

Dans quel état est-ce?

Que faut-il faire?

Quelle est l'échéance?

Le Programme de gestion des actifs municipaux (PGAM) : conçu pour soutenir les municipalités

Les décisions d'investissement en infrastructure sont prises selon des pratiques de gestion des actifs plus solides fondées sur des données fiables

↑ de la sensibilisation à l'importance de la GA

↑ de l'accès et de l'utilisation des connaissances en GA

↑ de la capacité de mise en œuvre des pratiques de GA

SAYING GOODBYE TO STELLARTON MEMORIAL RINK

WHEN THE TOWN COUNCIL of Stellarton, Nova Scotia learned last Fall that their beloved Memorial Rink needed about $4.1 million in repairs and upgrades, one councillor said they felt like they'd been kicked in the gut. "Emotions started running high immediately," says Susan Higdon, Stellarton's town clerk. The rink was an important piece of history in the town and had been serving the community well for 72 years.

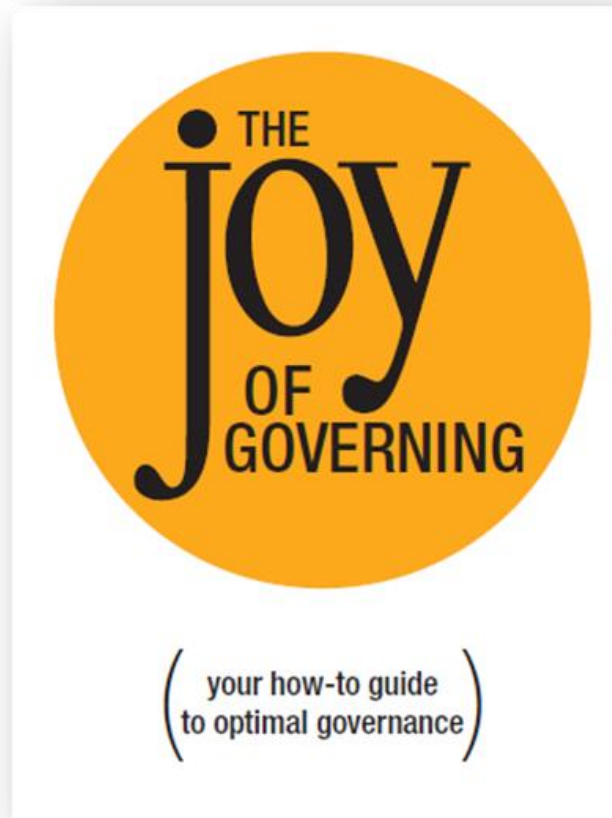

The lead up to the bad news started last Spring at budget time when council was considering buying a dehumidifier for the rink that would have cost about $80,000. The town engineer knew the building had several issues and suggested doing an aging building audit. Higdon

ASSET MANAGEMENT RESOURCES FOR BEGINNERS
A sample from across Canada and around the world

There are many excellent asset management resources available in Canada. A quick google search will reveal dozens of them. This list provides a sample of great asset management resources for beginners, as recommended by the Technical Working Group of the Municipal Asset Management Program.

Remember that your province or territory may have specific requirements, regulations, or approaches to asset management, so we encourage you to start with local resources if they are available. You can also look to your local asset management community of practice for more information (www.assetmanagement.ca).
